Re: Center for Curriculum Redesign

Dear Charles,

It was a pleasure to catch up recently and hear about your plans to create a Center for Curriculum Redesign to focus on the prickly issue of curriculum in an age of instant and abundant information. Microsoft believes strongly in the power of ICT to transform pedagogical practices to deliver more engaging, compelling and relevant learning. At the heart of such a challenge are questions around what should we teach and what do our next generation learners need to learn?

I commend you on your leadership and am more than happy to lend my endorsement to this project. I know far reaching projects such as this are critical if we are to move the needle on delivering our vision of Anytime, Anywhere Learning for All.

Yours sincerely,
